Some initial comments.

Attached in track changes are some notes I made while reading through. They largely predate our discussion of how to make summary statements a bit "catchier" for readers, so in places it may duplicate or may be less articulate than I'd like about that issue.

I often like to reread these after I have had the document for longer, since some of them seem obsolete on a reread.

But, with trying to wrap up loose ends before a week of furlough/leave I just am not getting to that.

So, I pass this along as sort of "raw, unedited" comments. So, if they are useful, or where they are useful, please take them into account.

Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP)

Glad to see the progress. Sorry I have not had time to cycle back and look at my own marginal notes again. But, they are less important in this case than was our discussion last week of where we are and where we are going.

David

Hi David,

We are sending the introductory material, hazard section and supplemental material for the formaldehyde assessment for your review. We have edited the preface in the introduction section quite a bit since you saw it last.

There are comments in this version that indicate where we intend to do further work. Hopefully they won't be distracting.

Regards, Barbara and Andrew (for Formaldehyde Team)
